WILD BIRD FEEDING GUIDE

Food Type

Description

Black Oil Sunflower Seed.....	Most birds love sunflower seeds: cardinals, doves, juncos, Red-bellied Woodpeckers, finches, chickadees and titmice. Black oil is a smaller seed which may be easier for small birds to eat. Its high oil content means high energy for birds. It's the birds' #1 choice in sunflower seed!
Striped Sunflower Seed.....	Striped sunflower seeds are larger than the black oil-type seeds.
Monticello Gourmet Blend.....	Formulated to attract a wide variety of songbirds and packed on an Amish Farm in Ohio, this blend is sure to be a hit in either a tube or fly through feeder. Chickadees, Tufted Titmouse and Woodpeckers are sure to enjoy the peanuts, while the Premium Oil Sunflower is sure to attract Cardinals and many, many others of your favorite songbirds.
Select Sunflower Chips.....	Hulled sunflower seeds are attractive to virtually all birds. Birds whose beaks are incapable of cracking the shells of sunflower seeds readily eat the chips. Although chips are more expensive per pound, you pay only for edible food and not for the shell (and don't have the mess).
Finch Blend.....	Contains 50% nyjer seed and 50% fine chips. Will attract a wide variety of finches.
Peanut Splits .....	Contains peanut pieces out of the shell.
White Millet.....	Ground-feeding birds, such as juncos, cardinals, White-throated Sparrows, Indigo Buntings, Eastern Towhees love white millet. It can be offered on the ground or on a tray.
Nyjer (Thistle) Seed.....	This seed is extremely attractive to goldfinch. Think of nyjer as a special treat for those colorful little birds! Titmice, wrens, nuthatches and other small birds also love nyjer seed.
Safflower Seed.....	... Attracts cardinals. Squirrels do not like this seed.
Suet Cakes.....	Peanut butter suet attracts a variety of birds and provides a great source of energy.

In addition, we offer

Bluebird Houses..... Constructed of high quality cedar; will last 10 or more years.
