November Meeting Topic: Antarctic Ice—The Ultimate Adventure

In the autumn of 2002, Teta Kain, along with three friends, spent 17 days on a ship plying the Antarctic seas looking for those special birds found primarily near the Antarctic Circle. This trip is a little different from the usual sub-polar adventure story in that the party left from Cape Town, South Africa and ventured hundreds of miles south across the 40th and 50th parallels to reach the pack-ice that surrounds the continent of Antarctica. You won't soon forget the wild ocean, breath-taking icebergs, beautiful seabirds and the remote sub-antarctic islands in this once-in-a-lifetime story that Teta will present at our November 13th meeting.

arrived in Virginia, 25 years ago. She is a past-president of the VSO. She is also president an environmental group on Virginia's Middle Peninsula, dedicated to preserving the unique and pristine river known as Dragon Run.

Please join MBC members and our speaker for dinner at Wild Greens Restaurant in the North Wing of Barracks Road Shopping Center on November 13th at 5:45 pm prior to the meeting.

Teta Kain has been a wildlife photographer for over 35 years, and although she has traveled extensively throughout the United States, and especially in Virginia, photographing everything from bugs to birds, the Antarctica trip was her first trip out of this country. Teta has been involved with nature and environmental organizations ever since she

Comments From the President

During the past year or so it has been my pleasure, through the assistance of Jenny Gaden, to look over and transcribe the bird records of Mo Stevens. Mo, who is now up in years and doesn't get out much, has kept records of Albemarle County sightings and observations since the 1940s. Sometimes the sightings were his own, sometimes those of others, duly acknowledged. It is a great fund of information. Since I am the sort of birder who is usually on the prowl for the more unusual birds, these were the ones to which I was most drawn as I looked over Mo's notes. Based on his records, and those of a few others, what unusual species might be searched for in November in our area?

According to the Stevens records, the greatest number of Snow Geese ever seen in Albemarle County, ten, were near Scottsville November 26th of 1988. Tundra Swans can also be around. Peter Brask noted seventy of them flying over Batesville November 11, 1994 while Peter Mehring counted the same number over Coveseville Nov 13, 2004. This tells me we should be looking skyward in November. The only White-winged Scoter, an ocean duck, ever seen in Albemarle County was found near Crozet by Jim Childress November 4, 1983. Continuing with waterfowl, Rob Capon and I saw a Redhead, mixed with Canada and a few Snow Geese, last November 10th at the King Family Vineyard pond at Crozet.

A mega-bird for any birder in the eastern United States would be a Golden Eagle. In Albemarle County, only four of these large raptors have been seen, three in November. The most recent was an Ivy Creek sighting by Jim Nix on November 6, 1993. Since this was a Saturday, it must have been on the bird club's Saturday walks there. Again, keep your gaze upward.

A good deal smaller than a Golden Eagle is a little bird of northern barrens, the Snow Bunting. In Frederick County, Maryland, where Ellie and I used to live, we looked for these birds on snow-covered fields over which farmers had recently spread manure. As for Albemarle County, none have been seen that way. Rather, all the records are for the first few days of November, in the higher ridges, such as Buck's Elbow and Big Flat (Loft Mountain). This tells me a walk on the gravel road to the communications tower at Beagle Gap of the Skyline Drive might be a wise strategy for this one.

All of which brings me, rather tangentially, to Canadian vocalist Gordon Lightfoot, a fine singer and even finer lyricist. In his hit song The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald we find the following:

“The wind in the wires made a tattle tale sound, and a wave tumbled over the railing.
And every man knew, as the captain did too, ‘twas the witch of November
come stealing.”

May the witch of November, with perhaps a little help from Mo's records, bring you good birding in our next-to-last month of 2008.

Thanksgiving Window Watch Count

The VSO Thanksgiving Window Watch Count will take place on November 27, 2008. Anyone can participate by watching for one hour at any time on Thanksgiving Day, filling out the form (see <http://www.virginiabirds.net/>, form located in the VSO fall newsletter pdf), and returning it to the address below. To participate select a circular area 15 ft. in diameter which includes feeders, bird baths, or habitat which attracts birds. Count the number of birds of each species, which come into the area during one hour. Try to judge the actual number birds, not number of visits.

MBC Minutes for October 9, 2008

MBC president Stauffer Miller welcomed 53 people to the second meeting of the fall season. Several of the newcomers were there because they had read about the owl presentation in CVille Weekly.

Treasurer's Report: Henry Konat reported that some money was already coming in from the birdseed sale. Income $1,926; expenses $1,309; net gain $616. The club has $14,500 in the bank.

Birdseed Sale: Jim Hill reminded the group about the birdseed sale and asked for volunteers. He needs folks to "greet and load" on pick-up day, Saturday November 8th at the Virginia Department of Forestry warehouse. He also needs people to make reminder phone calls to those who have made purchases.

Field Trips: John Zimmerman gave a brief description of the upcoming field trips. Jim Nix and Dave Hogg will take a trip to Secluded Farm on October 11th. John Zimmerman will take a group to Beaver Creek and King Family Vineyards on October 18th. The annual trip to the CBBT and Chincoteague will take place November 21st and 22nd this year. Participants MUST fill out a security form (www.cbbt.com/birding) and return to John by November 7th. MBC Annual Christmas Bird Count will be December 14th; Jenny Gaden says newcomers are welcome and will be paired with experienced birders.

Stauffer extended his thanks, on behalf of the club, to Ron and Priscilla Kingston for their efforts behind-the-scenes prior to each meeting setting up chairs, making coffee, organizing nametags, etc.

Recent Bird Sightings: Carol Hill described the idiosyncrasies of a Northern Gannet, a bird she encountered on her trip to Newfoundland. Bill Leaning saw a Black-throated Blue Warbler on its fall migration through Earlysville and still has two hummingbirds hanging around. Jim Nix's hummers departed for southern climes on Monday. Betty Mooney said the Saturday Bird Walk at Ivy Creek was productive and they spotted a Tennessee Warbler among others. Jenny Gaden says fall is clearly upon us; she's seen a Yellow-bellied Sapsucker and a Hermit Thrush. Stauffer also spotted a sapsucker and still sees some Chimney Swifts that haven't left. Henry Konat said a flock of 600 Chimney Swifts near him has not departed either.
